5 residents to the advancement of civil rights in Prince George’s County.

6 WHEREAS, by 1850, Prince George’s County was home to the largest population of slaves
7 of African descent in the State of Maryland, comprising over half of the County’s numerical 8 population by 1860; and

9 WHEREAS, during the post-Civil War era, at least four (4) persons were lynched and 10 murdered by racial violence in Prince George’s County; and

11 WHEREAS, in the Jim Crow era, racial segregation and discrimination, particularly 14 whites-only communities, and a segregated and unequal school system; and

15 WHEREAS, the Brown v. the Board of Education decision in 1954 declared segregation
16 unconstitutional, Prince George's County schools were not fully integrated until a federal court

19 contributions to the advancement and progress of civil rights in Prince George’s County; and
