#7: Access to high-quality neighborhoods is limited for residents of many parts of the county

Housing and neighborhood choice is limited to those with higher incomes due to the high cost of renting or buying in areas with good schools, healthy environments, and better access to reliable transit and jobs. Most affected by lack of access to high -quality neighborhoods are Hispanic and Asian households.

#9: Limited understanding of housing and service needs of the rising refugee population

Population growth in the County and Bowie since 2010 can be largely attributed to the growth in foreign -born individuals and households. There is a lack of understanding of the needs of newcomers and limited outreach to non -English speaking populations.
